"Immediately after my 3rd release from prison I thought to myself, 'there is no way I can ever stay out'. I remember telling myself if I did manage to stay out, I would someday like to start a program so people like me might have a chance. It was about ten years later when in2Action was created. Nothing excites me more than watching God at work in the hearts and lives of the men we serve. I am so blessed day after day to watch hardened criminals turn their lives around and become law-abiding and productive members of our community taking their rightful place as good employees, neighbors, and family members."
